By Jane Sutton, Kate Chappell (Illustrated by)

Zayde is babysitting Ruthie before the Passover seder, but who exactly is babysitting whom? It's Zayde's first time babysitting by himself and shenanigans ensue.

Passover starts tonight and Zayde is babysitting for Ruthie—his first time by himself! Mommy has left a list of things to do: Buy parsley at the grocery store for the seder plate, go to the playground so Ruthie can use up energy, then use up more energy at home because seders last a long time. And be sure Ruthie takes a nap. But who exactly is babysitting whom as an afternoon of shenanigans ensue?

Jane Sutton is an award-winning author of picture books and novels for children. She grew up on Long Island and attended Brandeis University. Jane lives with her husband in the Boston area, as do their grown children and families. She is grateful to get lots of chances to babysit her grandchildren and hopes she makes fewer mistakes than Ruthie's Zayde.

Kate Chappell is an illustrator from North East Lincolnshire, UK. She graduated from Falmouth University with a degree in Illustration, and has since worked with a variety of publishers internationally.
